*“Why do you chase foxes?”
“Because foxes are sexy.”*

In his new novel, The Prophet of Paradise, J. Harris Anderson reveals the intriguing interplay between foxhunting, faith, and pheromones.

Virginia's rarified, tradition-bound foxhunting society is threatened by a radical concept: The Church of Foxhunting! True believers sing [literally] the praises of the sporting life. A current of titillation flows among them, from teenagers to grandparents. The two meanings of “venery” (pursuits both sporting and erotic) happily blend into a single drive.

But with the established hierarchy challenged, conflicts arise and tensions grow. An eclectic ensemble cast of characters, from the hunt's senior master to the trailer-dwelling tractor mechanic, must deal with the upheaval to their cloistered world.

Entertaining, amusing, and thought-provoking, The Prophet of Paradise is a new direction in the field of horse sport literature, an excellent read for those who foxhunt, or who simply enjoy a well-told tale.*

The author will discuss his work and sign just-released copies. Please join us for this entertaining and informative evening.
